

Growing the Neighborhood Feeding Cleveland

A recurring theme in 20th century Cleveland that continues to the present day is that during difficult economic periods communities of people have come together to raise food crops on city land.

Barbara Strauss, Assistant Director for Technical Services, CSU Library, will present “Feeding Cleveland”, a photographic/historical look at revivals of urban agriculture as a response to economic difficulties.

We will meet in the St. Stephen Club Room, November 17th at 7pm for this FREE program. See you there!

Parking lot is accessible off W. 57th St

This project funded in part by a grant from Neighborhood Connections, a program of The Cleveland Foundation.
